Book Company Continues Reprints

BALTIMORE, Maryland—The Southern Book Company announces that the twelfth book in their series of reprints of rare genealogical books will be AN ABSTRACT OF NORTH CAROLINA WILLS compiled by Fred A. Olds and originally published in 1925.

This book covers the period from about 1760 to about 1800 and is designed to be a supplement to J. Bryan Grimes' Abstract of North Carolina Wills which covers the colonial period down to about 1760. It also includes a good many wills of the earlier period to which Mr. Grimes did not have access.

This reprint, according to the publisher's announcement, will be an exact photographic reproduction of the original, but has had added to it an index to the counties. Copies of the original edition of this invaluable reference work have not been available at any time due to the fact that it was privately printed in an edition of only 125 copies. Of these 100 were placed in each of the counties of the state and others in leading libraries throughout the country.

Impressions Of American Libraries

By FERN CRANDALL
Rupert, Idaho

My experiences in visiting Genealogical Libraries have been soul-satisfying and rewarding. Everywhere there is the same helpful spirit and dedication to the preserving of the records. The day I visited the John Filson library in Louisville, Kentucky, I heard a gentleman tell the lady in charge that "at last he had gathered together the records of his people." He told how a relative had maliciously destroyed all the family records and it had taken him eleven years to replace them. The southern lady in charge of the library told him how pleased she was that the library was so helpful to him and added further, "You know we are devoted to the encouragement of gathering and preserving the records." This is the spirit of true genealogy.

A Dream Project

The story of the founding of this library is a story of faith and determination to preserve the records. It began as a dream in the minds of a group of men who met to discuss Kentucky history. Finally one of the group died and left $50,000 to be used to start the work. Two old houses were pulled together and joined with a corridor to house the growing collection of records. The library was named in honor of John Filson who wrote the first Kenutcky history.

Before leaving Louisville, I visited the public library which had its usual collection of familiar genealogical publications, seen wherever there are a few shelves devoted to genealogical works. Upstairs in the same building was another genealogist's paradise. Over the door of one of the rooms in gold lettering was the inscription: "Kentucky Room." Who was responsible for this valuable collection of genealogical data I did not learn. The matron in charge told me that she was "sure they had manuscripts, Bible records, and other material of a rare nature"; after looking around I was sure she was right. There can be no fine line drawn between Kentucky history and that of many other southern states, especially Virginia since Kentucky was made from that state. This is a very valuable collection for anyone interested in Southern research.

Should Begin At Home

It is only natural that collections within a state should have as their prime objective the gathering of the records of that particular state. It is always well to keep this in mind when making a genealogical search within a certain state. St. Louis Public Library, for example, has a concentrated collection of Missouri histories. Miss Georgia Gambrill, head genealogist, and author of several books in the library, said they had histories from nearly every county in Missouri and, furthermore, they were nearly all indexed. The W.P.A. had started the indexing and then the staff had kept on until that work was nearly completed (fall of 1952) I have never seen a county history that wasn't a huge book, written in fine print, and as you may know, are usually never more than partly indexed, if indexed at all.

I have found material in the Newberry library in Chicago that I have never been able to duplicate elsewhere. That library contains valuable Eastern and Northern genealogies.

Three Coast Libraries

San Francisco has several genealogical collections. Three of these I have visited: The genealogical room in the Sutro library, the Mayflower Library and the Son of the American Revolution Library. All of these are on or just off Market Street. Material found in S.A.R., D.A.R., Mayflower and similar libraries are devoted to a special purpose, that of promoting or preserving the records of descendants or ancestors of various patriotic groups. The emphasis on their collection is along that line.

These are a few of the libraries I have visited. A visit to a library makes a person realize the magnitude and responsibility of record keeping. It imbues one with an appreciation of the efforts of others in keeping the great human record. An unknown author has said, "This is a trust that providence committed to our care: and who is so dead to sympathy, to kindred and country, that would not preserve the records of his ancestors——."

"Helper" Again Brings Researchers Together

Genealogical Helper,
518 North Main Street,
Logan, Utah.

Dear Sirs:

Again I must say thank you; recently I received a letter from a lady who read in the September, 1953 issue of the Genealogical Helper I wanted information on Byers of Maryland.

She could not give me any help, but did send me the name of one who does research work in Maryland, and today I received a very wonderful report of both Byers and Beard families, stating where each record can be found. Credit due to your publication.
